Ashley Blaker isn't your average orthodox Jewish man: he is also an internationally-acclaimed comedian.

In November 2015 he embarked on his first stand-up tour – Unfiltered – which played to sell-out audiences the length and breadth of the UK.

He started 2017 with his first Israel tour and followed this with his second UK show – Meshuga Frum – which he performed at sold-out theatres across the country.

His BBC Radio 4 show 'Ashley Blaker's Goyish Guide To Judaism' will air in 2018.

In his spare time, Ashley Blaker is an award-winning comedy writer and producer for radio and TV.

As a radio producer, he was responsible for first unleashing the comedy phenomenon Little Britain on the nation and he has worked with a who's who of TV comedy.

His company Black Hat Productions is currently making several series for BBC Radio 4 including Couples and Josh Howie's Losing It.

If he has any time after that, then it's spent being run ragged by his six children.
